Hungary has no marine coastline nowadays, but it does have the Hungarian Sea, otherwise known as Lake Balaton. The lake has been popular since the Magyar tribes first galloped into the Carpathian Basin in 896 and shows no signs of losing its appeal. A collection of resort towns and an interesting bicycle route ring the 77 kilometre long lake.

Hévíz-Balaton Airport is 20 kilometres from Keszthely at the southern end of the lake. From there, you can hire a car or take a bus and explore some of the resorts.

THE LAKE

Lake Balaton offers a long shoreline dotted with family resorts on the southern side and welcoming vineyards to the north. With its green and silky water, the lake is Hungary's favourite summer retreat.

However, there is much more to do all year around than just lounge around at the lakeside. Each waterfront town has its own unique character, from the cultural centre of Keszthely at the western tip to the elegant spa resort of Balatonfüred. Situated a little over 120 kilometres southwest of Budapest, Lake Balaton stretches out diagonally from the capital as a kind of lumpy oblong for 77 kilometres.

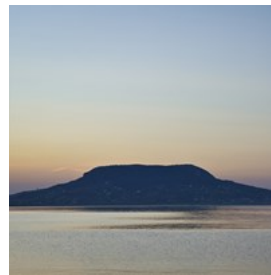

The most interesting statistic of the lake is its depth, or rather lack of it as the average depth is just 3.3 metres. Especially along the southeastern shore, you have to wade out a long, long way before the water comes up to your knees. For this reason, the lake is extremely popular with families with young children.

Lake Balaton also offers a surprising range of entertainment possibilities. While Siófok on the southern coast attracts the young, party-loving disco crowd, it also offers all around family fun as well. The north bank around Balatonfüred is a little more sedate and populated with artist colonies, but it is also a perfect choice for families. The most family-friendly beach around the Lake is situated in Balatonfüred, the Eszterházy Strand. The craggy outcrops of Badacsony are covered with vineyards and the healing waters are good both for drinking (Kékkuti) and bathing (Hévíz).

The gastronomy around the Balaton has been improved in the region. Recently more and more restaurants have used local ingredients and new methods to prepare the dishes. The bistros and Fröccsterrace have been appearing in the small villages as in the 3 big towns as well, where you can taste beach food also, such as waterdog or Balcsi Bagel.

Balaton Wine Region

Badacsony Wine Region: The volcanic hills on the northern shore, the most eye-catching being the table-shaped Badacsony, are famous for their refreshing white wines and breathtaking views. The rich, volcanic soil is perfect for growing wine.

Balatonboglár Wine Region:

The whites and champagne dominate in this region, the red grapes popularity has been increasing recently, especially Merlot, Cabernet Sauvignon and Cabernet Franc.

Balatonfüred-Csopak Wine Region:

The area around Balatonfüred and the nearby village of Csopak, is famed for crisp and dry white wines, but this wine region produces quality red wines, such as Merlot and Cabernet as well.

It is worth visiting the wine regions during the harvest season. Almost every settlement celebrate the harvest and organise programs, the most popular event in this period is the Badacsony Harvest, which is held in every September.

Tihany Peninsula

The 'Pearl of the Balaton' is just 10 kilometres across the gulf from Balatonfüred. The Benedictine abbey dominates the skyline and the Tihany peninsula was declared Hungary's first national park in 1952. To escape the crowds, walk inland to the Belső-tó (Inner Lake) a volcanic crater filled with calm fresh water and surrounded by grasslands, vineyards, orchards and fragrant lavender fields.

Hévíz

Situated on the southern tip of Lake Balaton, 5 kilometres inland from Keszthely, the lake (Gyógy-tó) dates back to a very early geological period. As a biologically active thermal bath its water is very special and significant. This settlement is good choice to take part in active tourism as cycling and nord walking. Hévíz is at its best in winter: you can immerse yourself in steamy, hot water, utterly impervious to any snow or rain that might fall.

Cycling around Lake Balaton

The bike road network around the Lake Balaton is more than 200 km long. The stage is easy, only the East and the North shore is hilly, the other side is flat. This bike tour is well recommend for every cyclist with average experience and perfect for families and seniors.

You can plan your trip on this website:

www.bikemap.net/hu/route/543314-balatonkor/

Round the lake bike races are more and more popular in Hungary. You can find a lot of alternative cycling paths wait for the tourists, for example in the west region.

The number of the bicycle-friendly bistros and restaurants is rising around the Balaton, where you can have a fresh beverage or take a nap under the trees in the afternoon. You have an opportunity to rent a bike in many settlements.

Balaton Uplands National Park

The area of 56 997 hectares of the Balaton Uplands National Park mainly consists of these six landscape protection areas: Kis-Balaton, Keszthely Hills, Tapolca Basin, Káli Basin, Pécsely Basin and Tihany Peninsula.

Among its regions Kis-Balaton is also protected by the international Ramsar Convention, serving the protection of wetland habitats. Tihany Peninsula - as a recognition of its outstanding geological values and the work of nature conservation in that region - was awarded of European Diploma in 2003. The Natura 2000 areas, covering partly the National Park and going beyond its area ensure the possibility of the conservation of habitats, plant and animal species which are of European importance.

The initiative of Bakony-Balaton Geopark - the area of which covers partly the National Park - sets the aim of interpreting the geological, natural and cultural values and awakening the consciousness of their social significance. The Bakony-Balaton Geopark became member of the European Geoparks Network and the Global Geoparks Network - assisted by UNESCO in 2012.

DINING

Hungary Tourism Ltd

Lake Balaton is a gourmet's heaven. The lake is surrounded with resorts devoted entirely to entertainment and leisure. Resorts such as Balatonfüred, Keszthely and Siófok are crammed with restaurants, bars, cafés and nightclubs offering mostly sturdy, meaty Hungarian cuisine, although Italian restaurants are extremely popular also. The lake is home to 40 different kinds of fish and many of these make their way onto the table. The volcanic soil around Badacsony produces some of the best white grapes in the country and the wine makes a superb accompaniment to fish suppers.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

Hungary Tourism Ltd.

Lake Balaton's bars have delightful terraces in the spring and summer overlooking the waterside and an excellent spot for sipping on local chardonnay and chilling out. The main Balaton destination for party-goers is Siófok. This resort is entirely given over to hedonism, especially in the warmer months, when ravers stay up until dawn, often rounding the night off in style with a dip in the lake. The resort of Balatonfüred, on the northern shore opposite is more sedate, however it too lets its hair down during the many wine festivals in the autumn.

Beach Party Café

This place is great for enjoying a couple of drinks in the sun with your friends. Beach Party Café is a part outdoor and part indoor café and also features an exclusive dance club.

SHOPPING

Lake Balaton is a holiday and relaxation destination with an abundance of hotels, restaurants and swimming pools but very few opportunities for shopping. Keszthely's main street has a few supermarkets where you can pick up all the necessities and a lively market on Wednesdays and Saturdays where you can find everything from clothes to food and wine. Keszthely also has a Tesco superstore if you forget anything from home. There are 11 Tescos around the Lake Balaton altogether. The only Mall around the Lake Balaton is situated in Siófok. There is a cinema inside as well. On Sundays all of the supermarkets are closed. Tihany has many shops selling souvenirs, not just tacky objects but hand-crafted goods such as embroidered tablecloths, carved wooden toys, ceramics and folk items.

From one of the many wine cellars in the Badacsony region, visitors can purchase home-made wine to take away. Balatonfüred also has many good souvenir shops and stalls along the shoreline where you can buy beach towels, sunglasses and suntan lotion. When the wine festival takes place in Balatonfüred, it is also possible to buy many excellent local wines at bargain prices.

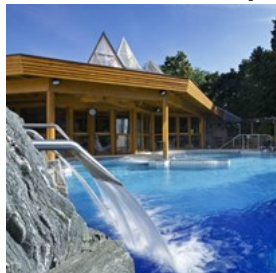

If you prefer natural produces you have to visit one of the many cosy Farmer's Markets round the Lake, where you are able to buy tasty vegetables and fruits, dairy products, eggs, smoked meat, cheeses, honey and jams. The mood is always great at the markets. You can find Farmer's markets in Káptalantóti, Hévíz, Vászoly,

Villa Millennium Balatonalmádi

The building dates back to the years of the Millennium in Hungary, 1896. Since 1910 the name was Aunt Gizus guesthouse and was open for guests to relax and enjoy the unique surroundings.

The red stone, sawed lace-tree porches with thick walls and many small details faithfully evoke the atmosphere of tarnished summers at Lake Balaton, the love of sunshine, sports and swimming carefree joy.

Following a careful planning and redevelopment Villa Millennium has reached its present form. The modern equipment, cheerful colors, styles, and our friendly staff guarantee your highest comfort.

Páskom Cottage, Lajoskomárom

At the south-eastern side of Lake Balaton, just a 1 hour ride from Budapest (the Highway M7 is only 20 Minutes away), 25Kilometres south of Siófok lies a village in Fejér County called Lajoskomárom. Next to its 40 hectares field of grapevines at the foot of Fülöp Vineberg You can find Páskom Cottage.

There are 4 Apartments and 6 Double Rooms - with a balcony looking at the garden in all of them -make the cottage a comfortable place to stay in for 25-28 people. The restaurant is able to serve up to 40 people at a time and the conference room is able to seat 16, turning the cottage into an ideal place for small events, unique weddings and for family happenings. The 1 hectare park surrounding the cottage serves the relaxation of our guests as well, with its small swimming lake, artificial pool, Sauna-house and wellness services.

This place is a meeting of traditional and modern designs, the result of the local's attachment to the Vineberg, the nature and the village of Lajoskomárom, that is paired up with gastronomic curiosities.

ESSENTIAL INFORMATION

Hungary Tourism Ltd.

Although Balaton is a region and not a city as such. The composite facilities and amenities of a thriving city can be found spread across the numerous settlements all around the lake shore. Health facilities, sports grounds, entertainment and even a dedicated airport are all near the lake, though one must not forget that it is 77km long, so travelling from one end to the other can take a while, especially by public transport.

Ferries

This is a great way to see the lake up close. The ferries are run by the Balaton Shipping Co and operate on the Sjófok-Balatonfüred-Tihany-Balatonföldvár route, and from Fonyód to the Badacsony. A journey takes approximately 1,5 hours.
