Szczecin is an energetic city where the River Odra eventually flows into the Szczecin Lagoon. Today it is the capital of the region of West Pomerania which has suffered a turbulent history and now looks to an enlightened and cultural revival. A focal point is that it has managed to preserve its unique character and charm since its recent reform. Szczecin is now awakening to its full potential at an ever increasing pace. You will really feel inspired as you explore this enthralling city.

THE CITY

Żegluga Szczecińska

"Echte Stettiner" (True Szczecin) - this was the way to describe someone stubborn, resolute, courageous, raw - in XIX-th century. Genius loci of Szczecin is felt here easily: in the communist era Szczecin was the city, where strikes broke out, where people put up a continuous resistance to the communist regime. Today, Szczecin is also full people with a firm, but at the same time welcoming character.

Szczecin was the capital of the Duchy of Pomerania, but also had been ruled by Denmark, Prussia, France, Sweden, Germany. Today it's inside the Polish borders. This extraordinary past can be seen today on every step: in architecture, urban planning, squares, parks; while walking you pass the still operating water pumps, shelters, old signs.

During the Second World War, Szczecin was destroyed in 80%, so - in contrast to most of the cities - we don't have the Old Town. Currently, it is being re-built.

Even visiting pubs and discos brings you a trip in time: in one of the pubs you can move to the seventeenth century, to the time of the Swedish Szczecin (it is opened in the former city fortifications); in another - to the Communist times (when there was a militia station). One of nightclubs is located in the former headquarters of the Royal Iron Railway.

The past is everywhere here and it is always clearly visible - while walking in Poland's largest cemetery, which is both a park and botanical garden; the largest shelter in today's Poland, during the session in the oldest cinema in the world... Szczecin is also the history of technology: the wreck of the tanker made of concrete, Poland's only one railway drawbridge or the oldest floating dock in Europe.

At the same time Szczecin is not afraid of momentum and bold architecture. Two buildings that have won the highest architectural awards make this city even more worth visiting: Szczecin Philharmonic, that gained the Mies van der Rohe award and the Centre for Dialogue Upheavals with the World Building of the Year award that was won during the festival of architecture in Berlin in November 2016.

How much time is needed to see Szczecin?

Someone may say that the one-day intensive tour will do the trick. But this is not true, because Szczecin is not only about the past. Szczecin is also the vastness of space, water and greenery, which is best viewed from boat or kayak. Szczecin is a Floating Garden - many rare species of aquatic plants and animals have here their home.

Szczecin has many faces. How much time is needed to see and get to know them all?

Chrobry Embankment (Haken's Terrace)

The viewing terraces are 500 m long and are located 19 m above the Odra river bank.

The Chrobry Embankment, formerly Haken's Terrace, one of the most beautiful places in Europe. From here you can watch the vast

The earliest written history of the area dates back to the sixteenth century. In 1873, a demolition of the eighteenth-century fortifications of Szczecin began. Thanks to the great commitment of Hermann Haken, High Mayor of Szczecin, in the years 1902-1905 a viewing terrace was formed on the site of Fort Leopold. Wide staircases run on both sides from the terrace to the banks of the river, where two pavilions were erected as the entrance to the restaurant, created contemporarily in the remains of the fortifications. At the bottom, there is a fountain decorated with figures of John of Kolno and Wyszak and two tall columns stylized as lighthouses.

In the years 1906 to 1912 in the northern part of the terrace an architectural complex was built for the then regency of Szczecin, where now the authorities of the West-Pomeranian province have their headquarters. In addition, in the southern part of the Embankment a building complex of the Maritime Academy is located (from the years 1902-1905 and 1918-1921) and, housed in the same building, Contemporary Theatre and the Maritime Branch of the National Museum. Moreover, a large park is situated near the Chrobry Embankment.

Dialogue Center "Upheavals"

It's one of branches of the National Museum in Szczecin, where we present the newest history of Szczecin and West Pomerania region, with particular attention given to social protests and breaking events in the years 1970-1971, 1980-1981, 1988-1989, that lead Poland to regain independence in 1989. The building that houses our museum is partially hidden under the Solidarity Square. The exhibition is interactive, apart from subject-related pieces, in its underground rooms you may see films, pictures and recordings of the events' witnesses and participants. Location of the museum has not been chosen by an accident - it was here when on 17 December 1970 first shots were fired at the protesters. In July 2016, the Dialogue Centre Upheavals was ranked the Best Public Space in Europe. Four months later, on November 18, the same building was named World Building of the Year during the Festival of Architecture in Berlin.

Karl Finsterwalder

A concrete ship "Karl Finsterwalder" has been built during the World War II. Germans had been experimenting with concrete that time because of lack of steel supplies. They built two concrete ships Ulrich and Karl - both were tankers.

After the War, Soviets had made unsuccessful attempt to take the ship to the Soviet Union - luckily, they left the vessel on the shallow in the northern part of the Dąbie Lake in Szczecin.

You are able to go on board - a ladder is easy to find on one side of the ship. Also concerts are being played on board from time to time.

Railway drawbridge in Podjuchy

The only one railway drawbridge in Poland is in Podjuchy district in Szczecin. It has been built by Germans in 1933. They used an american patent to create it. One of the spans is not electrified - train uses the momentum to go along it.

The bridge is still in operation and it draws a few times a day.

The oldest floating dock

...the oldest in Europe, but you may also find texts mentioning, that this particular one is the oldest floating dock in the World, that is still in operation. The fact is, that it has been built in Hamburg in 1880.

You can find it on Basen Cichy, where Kanał Wrocławski (Breslauer fahrt) meets Duńczyca river (Dunzig).

EVENTS

Acoustic January

(January) Akustyczeń has been presenting various artists since 2008. Those artists always go their own way and shak up with the music - undefined, not bound to any of current streams and able to seek new forms of expression. There is also a large number of local artists taking part in this festival.

In other words - it's a festival of charivari.

Bonds of Culture

(1-st weekend of July)

"Bonds of Culture"

focuses primarily on an individual who has taken various strategies of relationship with reality which is too difficult or too absurd. At the same time the festival tells a tale about the boundlessness of human imagination - about making "alternative worlds" of a stuff at hand. About freedom born of apparent isolation and abandonment. Prepare for grotesque, for magic, for satiric, for melancholy, for surprise, and for joy. Prepare for cabaret, for show and for low-key events.

Sea eagle

Se eagle (or white-tailed eagle) is the most important national symbol of Poland - it appears on the Polish emblem. But it is not actually an eagle, but a hawk.

These birds have their sanctuary in Szczecin - wounded birds recover their strength here, but then they stay and live on islands, that are in the geographic center of the city, although they are wild and under the Nature 2000 Programme.

Comorants' forest

Comorants are specific birds. They live in large herds and like to sit on big and helthy trees. But their excrements are toxic, so trees that they sit on get sick and die. Then they find new trees. That is how cormorants forest was made. You can find it on the north-west side of the Dąbie Lake.

TRAFO - Transformer station of Art

Trafostacja Sztuki in Szczecin is the first center for contemporary art in the northwest of Poland. Founded in 2013, TRAFO takes advantage of its geographical potential – the cross-border location within the Baltic Sea region and the immediate vicinity of Berlin, the cultural capital of this part of Europe. It acts as a unique “display window” through which Szczecin confronts its artistic image with the world.

Łasztownia isle

Łasztownia (ger. Lastadie) is located in the very heart of Szczecin, vis-a-vis the Chrobry Embankment. It is a river island whose history stretches back to the Middle Ages. After the Allied air raids of 1942-1944, most of the buildings on Łasztownia were destroyed. Currently, Łasztownia is one of the most interesting (and most mysterious) places in Szczecin. One particularly interesting spot is the part of the Old Town Wharf situated right next to the historic cranes, affectionately dubbed the "cranosaurus". Following recent renovation works, they have regained their former splendour. Symbols of the port of Szczecin, these historical cranes from 1929 are at their most beautiful during the cyclic events organised on the Oder river.

Urban Summer Zone

The Urban Summer Zone (or "central beach" as the residents call it) was established near the marina, on Grodzka Isle. It is an area right on the bank of the Oder designated for rest and recreation on warm summer days. It has umbrellas, sunbeds, hammocks, pillows, beach balls and sand toy sets for children. There are also real palm trees planted in the sand and atmospheric garden lanterns. The zone is open in the summer season. There is no admission fee.

Pomeranian Dukes' Castle

Anyone entering Szczecin by bridges over the Oder River can see the towering red-brick gothic Cathedral and an elegant, pale silhouette of a Renaissance castle with green towers, which used to be the seat of the dukes of the Griffins dynasty who ruled the Duchy of Pomerania. The Pomeranian Dukes' Castle has five wings and two courtyards. Acting as a cultural institution it organizes an array of cultural events: concerts, theatre performances, exhibitions, conferences and meetings to popularize science, as well as to spread knowledge about the history of West Pomerania. The largest wing houses an Opera. In the wing that housed a mint in the olden days one can find today Cultural and Tourist Information Centre. There is a panoramic terrace on the rooftop of the northern wing from where splendid views can be seen. The wing's basement houses a Vault with sarcophaguses of six princes. The Duke Boguslaw X hall, which used to be a princely chapel, is now a concert hall with a polychromatic ceiling decorated in Renaissance style. A 17th century astronomical clock is the Castle's special tourist attraction. Also a room dedicated to Eilhard Lubinus and the Witches' Cell are definitely worth a visit.

Museum of Technology and Transport

"Art Depot" in Szczecin is an old tram depot which was built in 1912 with reinforced concrete. It has a sloping roof and a front glass wall with a clock. Since 2006 it has been one of the biggest Polish museums of a technological profile. The collection of almost 100 antique vehicles that was bought from Leszek Liszewski is the most precious. There, you can find such curiosities as micro-car Smyk or the one and only SUV version of Fiat 126p called in Polish “maluch” (tiny). Moreover, there are trams, buses (that you can enter), motorcycles, bikes, non-typical vehicles, electronic, telecommunication and household equipment and many more.

Chrobry Embankment (Haken's Terrace)

The Chrobry Embankment, formerly Haken's Terraces, one of the most beautiful places in Europe. From here you can watch the vast panorama of the Odra River and the harbour. The viewing terraces are 500 m long and are located 19 m above the Odra river bank.

The earliest written history of the area dates back to the sixteenth century. In 1873, a demolition of the eighteenth-century fortifications of Szczecin began. Thanks to the great commitment of Hermann Haken, High Mayor of Szczecin, in the years 1902-1905 a viewing terrace was formed on the site of Fort Leopold. Wide staircases run on both sides from the terrace to the banks of the river, where two pavilions were erected as the entrance to the restaurant, created contemporarily in the remains of the fortifications. At the bottom, there is a fountain decorated with figures of John of Kolno and Wyszak and two tall columns stylized as lighthouses.

In the years 1906 to 1912 in the northern part of the terrace an architectural complex was built for the then regency of Szczecin, where now the authorities of the West-Pomeranian province have their headquarters. In addition, in the southern part of the Embankment a building complex of the Maritime Academy is located (from the years 1902-1905 and 1918-1921) and, housed in the same building, Contemporary Theatre and the Maritime Branch of the National Museum. Moreover, a large park is situated near the Chrobry Embankment.

Discover Szczecin... from the waterside

As an alternative to walking, cycling or movie-watching ... enjoy a motorboat ride on the Oder River or Dabie Lake! Spots which can not be reached on foot, by car or bicycle, can be reached by ... a motorboat. You will enjoy not only the amazing panorama of Szczecin from the riverside, but also many interesting places - the backwaters of the Swieta River and the picturesque spots of Wydrnik canal, the so-called Venice of Szczecin, as well as the Dabie Lake and many islands and canals. A motorboat cruise is a great opportunity to watch wild nature - herons, white-tailed sea eagles, beavers, otters and many rare species of flora. Since they are equipped in a rather small engine, no motorboat driving license is required.

The Motorboat rental: Bulwar Gdanski (3 Zbozowa street).

Dialogue Center "Upheavals"

It's one of branches of the National Museum in Szczecin, where we present the newest history of Szczecin and West Pomerania region,

with particular attention

given to social protests and breaking events in the years

1970-1971, 1980-1981, 1988-1989, that lead Poland to regain independence in 1989. The building that houses our museum is partially hidden under the Solidarity Plaza, adjacent to the Concert Hall. The exhibition is interactive, apart from subject-related pieces, in its underground rooms you may see films, pictures and recordings of the events' witnesses and participants.

Location of the museum has not been chosen by an accident - it was here when on 17 December 1970 first shots were fired at the protesters. In July 2016, the Dialogue Centre

Upheavals was ranked the Best Public Space in Europe. Four months later, on November 18, the same building was named World Building of the Year.

Pionier 1907 Cinema

Cinema Commercial films are evaded. Yet, it is a cinema on a high-level. Or even two levels. Films can be watched in a soft armchair in cozy, historical room or at the table in "Kiniarnia" which is 2 floors below It a retrostyle room with a jabbering projector and a piano from 1898. You cannot buy popcorn at a bar but a glass of good wine. Seems like atmosphere in an old cinema? It is even better as it is the oldest cinema in the world which has been operating in the same place continuously since 1907. Before you enter the cinema please look at the glasscase, there is a certificate from The World Guinness Book.

The movies are shown in their original languages (with Polish subtitles), which is beneficial for all tourists visiting the city.

DINING

TomeK K./Shutterstock.com

Szczecin offers an abundance of restaurants to suit all tastes and pockets. The choice is yours but whilst here you ought to indulge in a hearty traditional Polish meal. Savour one of Poland's favourite meat dishes "kielbasa" (Polish sausage) and do not forget to sample the numerous pickled dishes. Polish food is truly flavoursome and plentiful.

Vege Club Amar

You won't find any menu there. You come and you order a meal. If you want to know in advance what is for today's dinner, check the profile on Facebook (www.facebook.com/vegeclubamar).

Every day something else is to eat, but one thing is certain - you'll never ever find any meat, milk, eggs or any other animal products in your food. Even better - most of the ingredients come from organic farms that are less than 100 km from Szczecin.

The blend of spices and their own recipes make Amar absolutely unique, aromatic and above all - very tasty. It's one of those places that you really need to visit.

Marshal Food

Marshal food is a restaurant inspired by British cuisine. From the beginning, we have received positive reviews about English breakfasts with a variety of flavors and filling. But British cuisine is not just beans and popular fish & chips. It also aromatic pies, tasty soups, good cheeses, delicious puddings. This is the taste of apples, rhubarb and great tea. Flavors penetrating dishes of colonial cuisine . On these tastes - coming from the British colonies we base our seasonal menu. Autumn brings us the smell of colorful India.

Our restaurant is not only tasty food. In warm blue-burgundy british colors you will find space for a family meal, a business meeting or an afternoon with friends.

You can talk, discuss, work, relax, laugh, have fun, have a drink, a quick lunch, a delicious dessert or a unique wine and beer. We create for you a place you will want to visit and return. See you later!

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

A city abundant with old vaulted cellars was made for convivial evenings, sharing good times and drinks with friends. There are many bars to choose from and you will find a warm welcome from everyone. Like every university town there is a hive of activity once night falls. Classic trance, electro, funk, rock and blues, they all showcase among the city's club nights.

Taverna Cutty Sark

In our port city there is one unique pub - a real, bustling, port tavern where you can eat and drink well and cheaply. Where sawdust is lying on the floor, candles burn on the barrels, maps and pennants hang on the walls, and as a background to the talks you can hear Irish music and shanties - played (or sung) also live.

Ceglana

To understand this place completely, you must look at the old maps of the Fortress of Szczecin (Festung Stettin), where you can see a powerful system of fortifications. In the XIX-th century, the city began to eliminate the Stronghold, however, the underground part was left, because there was no need to liquidate it. In XXI-st century the preserved monument of defense is not to be underestimated.

In the underground part of the fortress you can find a pub. A unique place: "Ceglana" uses charm of the stronghold and combines it with a space of a large beer garden on the upper level.

SHOPPING

Szczecin is a shoppers' paradise. The shopping malls are filled with internationally recognised brands in abundance. You can get some retail therapy at Centrum Handlowe Galaxy, al. Wyzwolenia 18, and whilst there do not miss Galeria Centrum, Sp. z o.o. at al. Niepodległości 60.

There are a few market places to rummage around too. At pl. Tobrucki you should not forget to pick up your fruit and vegetables. Whilst you are out for food, why not pick up something to try at home like Hunter Stew or Gulasch Seasoning? While trying to warm up in winter, a street market on pl. Zolrnerza Ploskiego lights up with Christmas decorations to take home even if you cannot take the trees away.

Woodcarving, particularly wooden boxes and dolls, embroidery, religious depictions on painted glass and pottery are amongst the many local handicrafts tempting the visitors. Amber is characteristic and found in this region and you will find fine jewellery fashioned in local galleries.

You cannot leave this city without taking away a little bite from the many confectionery shops. The cakes here are delightful and you should try the Karpatka Cake or the Praline Wafers.
