Örebro is an attractive city, well preserved with old areas along Svartån, the quiet river, and with new exciting architecture, business streets, pubs and cafés. And then there is "Finrummet" at Storbron - with the grand Vasa Castle, the jewel of the crown. Go shopping, have a meal at a sidewalk restaurant or just admire the beautiful views. Within walking distance from the town centre, the beautiful seashore scenery of the lake Hjälmarens is waiting for you. And ten kilometres to the west, Kilsbergen, "Blå Bergen" (the Blue Mountains), are rising with magnificent experiences.

THE CITY

The attractive town centre, with its cultural heritage, characterizes Örebro. The centre reminds us of the times when Örebro was founded on the gravel banks that made up the fjord where the medieval traffic through the kingdom crossed the river Svartån. Örebro - with its 95,000 inhabitants - is Sweden's sixth largest town. About 140,000 people live in the municipality of Örebro and the city is the main city of Örebro County.

In the 13th century a bridge over Svartån, which was called "Örebron," after "ör," the old Swedish word for "rolling" gravel, was built. Nearby, a town soon developed into a commercial center. Already during the 14th century traders gathered in late January for the large Hindersmässan (Hinders Trade Fair), which is an event that has continued until our days as one of the major, annual events in Örebro.

Owing to its central location in the middle of Svealand, Örebro has often been an eye-catcher through the years. At a meeting at the castle in the New Year of 1540, Gustav Vasa introduced the hereditary monarchy. Count Karl, Gustav Vasa's son (subsequently King Karl IX), frequently visited Örebro. In the late 17th century, he transformed the old medieval castle into a grandiose Vasa castle, where several sessions of the realm and other dramatic episodes later took place. Even King Gustav II Adolf often visited Örebro, and likewise held a session of the realm at the palace in 1617.

After a quiet 18th century, Örebro was hit by two devastating city fires in 1840 and 1854. In the latter, the major part of the inner city was destroyed and from the ashes, the modern Örebro rose. A new city plan was created and along the barren streets wonderfully decorated houses were built.

Örebro grew much during the second half of the 19th century. The city became a centre of the Swedish shoe industry, an epoch that did not end till the early 1980s, when the last shoe factories were closed. By then the city had already changed from industrial city to a centre for commerce, logistics and education. It boasts a university with more than 14,000 students as well as educational institutions at lower levels within most areas. The central location, which once contributed to the foundation of the city has meant that today many companies have chosen to place their central warehouses in Örebro. The airport is also the fourth biggest, Swedish airport for shipping.

Örebro is also a tourist city with many visitors. The Gustavsvik site draws about 700,000 guests every year, and during the summer the inner city is full of sidewalk restaurants, many of which are found in the fantastic environment in the neighbourhood around the palace. To have a fine view of it all you can walk up to the water tower "Svampen."

The river Svartån puts its stamp on Örebro as it winds through the city. Along the river you will find waterfalls, parks and gardens. Do go for a walk along the nature path to the waterfalls and remember to visit Sweden's oldest power station and old Kvarnen. Tekniska Kvarnen Insikten offers interesting and instructive experiments for adults and youngsters, and here you will also find one of Sweden's largest model railways. You should also certainly visit the open-air museum of Wadköping and its arts and crafts booths and shops.

City streets - strolling the city

In the northern part of the city is Lilla Å-promenaden, offering a place to stroll and ride your bicycle. It is approximately four kilometers long and takes you out to the nature reserve Oset-Rynningeviken. Along the way you will be able to enjoy ten sculptures and visit an art studio. There is also a permanent illuminations display.

"Fifteen metres of history" is a timeline on Järntorget that describes important events during the years 1810 to 2010 in Örebro, Sweden and the world. You will find it in front of the statue of Karl IV Johan (Jean Baptiste Bernadotte).

The solar system in Örebro is a to-scale trek through the planets starting from the tourist office on Olof Palmes torg (Olof Palme's square) via Drottninggatan-Storgatan to the water tower "Svampen" (a tower shaped like a mushroom).

TOP 10

Experience the best of Örebro during your visit. Örebro has fantastic live scenes and exciting events all year round, from history and culture to soft gigs and big music festivals.

Wadköping

In Wadköping, you'll experience Örebro as it was before. The open-air museum was created in the 1960s and is made up of farms that were saved from demolition in the southern part of central Örebro. Today, it may be difficult to imagine that the small timbered farms were once Örebro's grandest buildings. Today, the small houses are used as handicraft shops, boutiques, museums and Tourist office.

Stortorget & St. Nicolai Church

Stortorget (the town square) is one of Örebro's most important historical places. This is where St. Nicolai Church is, the city's principal church since the Middle Ages, but also the place where Jean Baptiste Bernadotte was elected heir to the throne in 1810. The neo-Gothic town hall is also on the square with its glockenspiel, which in winter houses Sweden's largest advent calendar. It is also here in front of the church, that the largest Christmas concert, O Holy night, is performed every year on the 2nd Sunday of Advent.

SHOPPING

kikovic/Shutterstock.com

Örebro has been a center for trade since the Middle Ages. In earlier days as well as today, most of the shops were located along what is today Köpmangatan, Kungsgatan, Drottninggatan, Storgatan and the two major squares in town Stortorget and Våghustorget. Today there are also four gallerias: Träffpunkt, Kompassen, Oscar C and mighty Krämarens.

Do not miss the cosy, small shops in Gamla Stan at Engelbrektsgata or all the craftsmen at Wadköping and Karlslund. There are more shops and major stores to the north, at Eurostop, in Bettorp-Lillån and at Aspholmen, southeast of city.

Marieberg is situated less than 10 km south of Örebro. It is the target for many visitors who enjoy shopping, Marieberg Galleria has more than 100 shops, restaurants and cafés under one roof. However, the large shopping center is far from being the only one. In the area you will find several large department stores. IKEA is the largest, but there are also a great many other retail stores that sell building materials, home furnishing, toys, radio/TV, auto equipment, sports/hobby and food. Many new shops are being established. .

Marieberg Galleria

At Marieberg Galleria there are more than 100 shops to go shopping in as well as restaurants and cafés. Marieberg Galleria is situated approx. 9 km south of Örebro. You will be able to find the most common brand names like Din Sko, Dressman, H&M, Gina Tricot, Kapp Ahl, MQ and Wedins so & Accessoarer, just to mention a few.

Wadköping

In central Örebro, at Stadsparken, you will find the open-air museum of Wadköping. This is where Örebro's oldest buildings and town areas are found.

There are several craftsmen's booths and small shops.

Wadköping got its name from Hjalmar Bergman's name for the neighbourhood of his childhood, and it appears in the novel "Markurells i Wadköping." It is the smallest section of Örebro, but it has museums, cafés, bakery, old books shop, a theatre and exhibition halls etc.
