THE CITY

RossHelen/Shutterstock.com

The River Limmat divides the city of Zürich into two distinct halves. It makes more sense to speak about the two banks rather than the new town/old town split. Niederdorf, on the east bank, is full of shops and cafés, but also home to the twin towers of the Grossmünster and the grandiose architecture of the university. The west bank is the old part of town, which is centred around the Lindenhof area where the streets are characterised by fashion outlets and offices. The beautiful spires of St. Peters Church and Fraumunster church, decorated by Marc Chagall, are nearby as well.

The curving Bahnhofstrasse follows the course of the ancient city walls and is one of Europe's most prestigious shopping streets. As Switzerland has cultivated stability and neutrality during both World Wars, the country has built up a reputation for its banking system, which for decades has been one of Zürich's biggest industries. It is also for these reasons that today the stock market in Zürich is the fourth biggest in the world.

DO & SEE

RossHelen/Shutterstock.com

There is so much to see in Zürich. This charming city is largely an intact medieval town with a beautiful natural setting. Here you can find something amazing at every corner: architectural highlights, historic squares, streets and districts, churches, works of art and much more.

The Grossmünster

The Grossmünster ("Great Minster") is a Romanesque-style church and one of the three major churches in the city. The tall twin towers of "Great Minster" dominate the Zürich skyline. It was from this spot that the humanist Ulrich Zwingli preached the Reformation.

SHOPPING

nullplus/Shutterstock.com

The main shopping area in Zürich is concentrated around the city centre, which makes it ideal for pedestrians and tourists. The most famous and one of the prettiest of the shopping areas is the Bahnhofstrasse where you will find big department stores, fashion shops, accessories, Swiss watches and everything else your heart desires.

The Bahnhofstrasse area is part of Zürich's banking district, and that is clearly visible in the number of exclusive and upmarket shops available. The area around Langstrasse contains a very cosmopolitan selection of shops and people which makes it a special experience every time you shop or just go there.

The pedestrian alleyways around Niederdorf are a shopper's paradise as there are several boutiques hidden away in a patchwork of alleys. Alongside the River Lammat is the Old Town, which is also a very attractive shopping area. It has fashion shops, jewellery and plenty of other things to offer. It is also in that area of Old town that you will find the smaller and more untraditional shops. It is, for instance, a very good place to find anything antique.

Schipfe is the place to find the craftspeople who sell their handmade products along the river.

Im Viadukt

This trendy area invites you to stroll around tiny shops that offers everything from international fashion brands to local labels and from second-hand to high fashion. There is even a market hall, housing more than 30 vendors where you can buy fresh fruits and vegetables or why not enjoy a coffee in one of the cafes along the Viadukt Arches.

Best Time to Visit

The best season to visit Zurich is definitely summer, particularly from June to August, when temperatures are pleasant and you can enjoy outdoor activities during the sunny days. If you want to visit the city when fewer tourists fill the streets, then spring is the best choice: March to May are the months when temperatures are still not too cold to be uncomfortable.

Zürich Airport

Zürich Airport is voted to be one of the best in the world. It consists of two terminals and they both have a Tourist in the arrivals hall. The airport is situated 11 kilometres outside Zürich and there are several ways of getting into the town centre.

Information Centre based

The subterranean train station is directly beneath Terminal B, and trains depart roughly every 10 minutes for the city's main station. You can buy tickets directly from the vending machines that can be found next to the SBB travel centre.
