It is said that natives of Cologne, who are living elsewhere, always feel homesick. Visitors to this beautiful city will soon understand why. Germany's oldest metropolis, which, of course, gave its name to the Eau de Cologne, offers a mix of magnificent and romantic churches, the latest in modern architecture, busy shopping streets and world-famous museums. There is much to do and see, including a world famous carnival, so come and explore Cologne! With frequent flights and transportation options, getting here has never been easier.

THE CITY

Leandro Neumann Ciuffo (image cropped)

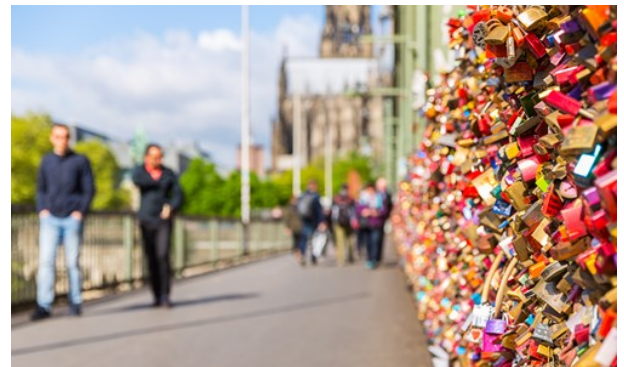

Visitors to Cologne will find a modern media city with historic roots. Cologne is the oldest of Germany's large cities and the impressive outline of its cathedral, a Gothic masterpiece and the most visited building in Germany, towers over all the city's other buildings. The cathedral, which was started to build in 1248, was one of the most ambitious building projects of the Middle Ages and is still one of the largest cathedrals in Europe.

The city began life as a Roman colony, hence the name Colonia, which later became Cologne, or Köln in German. Today Cologne is a metropolis in all senses of the word, both in terms of its size and the attractions it has to offer. It is a centre for the arts with many galleries and innumerable large international trade fairs.

The city's skyline is dominated by the cathedral and twelve Romanic churches, as well as by five large radio and television buildings. Many printing firms and newspaper companies are based in Cologne, which is one of Europe's most important media cities. Visitors will find that the majority of the sights, restaurants and nightclubs in Cologne are located in the city centre, in the Old Town or Altstadt, alongside the ring road around the city and in the Severin district to the south.

Cologne's location at the Rhine makes it the perfect starting place for romantic trips down the river. Amongst the more modern architectural sights, the Neo-Gothic building on Glockenstrasse is one of the most popular ones for visitors. This is where the city's most famous product, Eau de Cologne 4711, was originally manufactured.

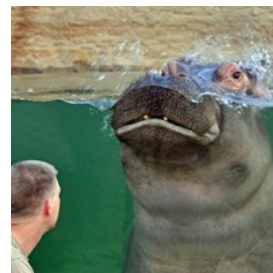

DO & SEE

r.classen/Shutterstock.com

Visiting the beautiful cathedral is a must and if you love art then a trip to the Ludwig museum is not to be missed. Of course, you should not miss the Chocolate museum or tasting different types of beer in one of several hundred pubs around town. Alongside the river, stroll around and stop off at one of the riverside restaurants - or take a seat on the sun-filled terraces and watch the world go by.

Cologne Zoo – Passionate about Animals

On the trail of elephants, meerkats and other exotic animals, explore this world-famous zoo located close to the banks of the Rhine. This zoo houses more than 750 different species making it a popular excursion destination whatever the weather. Visitors love seeing the animals at a

Cologne Cathedral

Work on building the cathedral began in 1248 and it was the largest building project undertaken in the Middle Ages. A large, spacious church was needed to accommodate the influx of pilgrims who came to visit one of the most important shrines in the Catholic Church, which holds the relics of the three wise men. The bones are kept in a casket which is the most precious treasure in the cathedral: a masterpiece of the medieval goldsmith’s art. You are really welcome to come for a service or guided tour.

MUSEUMS

Andrey Shcherbukhin/Shutterstock.com

Boasting a history that dates back to over 2000 years ago, this ancient cathedral city is a cultural hub rich in traditions. Historical sites can be found everywhere throughout the city, but it's inside the numerous museums that the real gems are kept for art lovers and tourists to enjoy.

The city features ten municipal museums ranging from art galleries, such as the Ludwig, to historical ones, like the Römisch-Germanisches Museum, treating the travellers with a good number of private galleries and ecclesiastic museums as well.

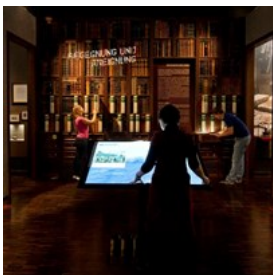

Museum Ludwig

The most comprehensive Pop Art collection in Europe. The third largest Picasso collection in the world. One of the best collections of German Expressionism. One of the internationally most significant collections of photography. One highlight follows another in this museum! The basis for the founding of the museum in 1976 was a generous gift of 350 works of modern art from Peter and Irene Ludwig to the City of Cologne. Since then the museum, which bears the name of its founders, has continually expanded its holdings and today is one of the most important collections of art of the twentieth and twenty-first centuries worldwide.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

Lena S/Shutterstock.com

The best way to spend a free evening is in a Biergarten (“beer garden”), where beer is served in a pleasant, open-air setting away from the street. If you’re looking for more intense and exciting nightlife with bars and clubs, head for the areas outside the ring road, the Old Town and the Severin district in the south of the city.

NADA Restaurant Bar

Enjoy a cozy evening with a nice meal and a formidable variety of beverages in the architecturally striking ambience located in the former regional finance office of Cologne.

Various rooms suit for a rendezvous but also offer a space for a group up to 40 people. The team of NADA looks forward to welcoming you.

SHOPPING

Sergey Galyonkin (image cropped)

Shopping in Cologne can be done easily within walking distance. We suggest starting at the Hauptbahnhof (main station), going past the cathedral and walking on southwards down Hohe Strasse as far as Cäcilienstrasse. This will give you a good overview of most of what the city has to offer. This long pedestrian area has shops selling clothes, technology, souvenirs, cosmetics, books and music. You will find brands such as Mango and Zara, but also the Kaufhof department store.

Breite Strasse is a side street off Hohe Strasse and has an interesting mix of shops. The new DuMont Carré and Opernpassage - or WDR arcade - has more exclusive labels and products. The most popular street in Cologne is probably the Schildergasse that runs south from the opera house to the Neumarkt and has some of the greatest shops in the city.

Not far away and just around the corner eastwards to the Hohe Strasse, the Ehrenstrasse starts off. A place especially for people who are looking for something fancy and hip or an exclusive fashion brand.

A new shopping area has grown up in the last years which runs westwards to Rudolfstrasse, with the Bazaar de Cologne shopping mall. The Belgisches Viertel – the Belgian district around Brüsseler Platz is well-known for new, young fashion. Here you will find trendy clothes, jewellery and designer labels.
